

Contents

SUMMARY.....	3	5 INDIVIDUALISED LEARNING IN MIXED ABILITY GROUPS IN FINLAND.....	41
PROLOGUE.....	5	Reformed curricular thinking.....	41
ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.....	9	Pursuing high-quality teacher education.....	42
1 SETTING THE SCENE.....	17	The history of development of the Finnish school system.....	43
Background to the discussion of mixed ability and individualised learning.....	17	The Comprehensive school as a promoter of social equality.....	44
Problems/ Obstacles.....	19	The Finnish Comprehensive school as a learning environment.....	48
Objectives for the project.....	19	The crucial role for assessment for developing teaching practice.....	52
Aim in this book.....	20	Teaching that provides learning opportunities and maximises their benefits.....	54
2 WHY DO WE HAVE SCHOOLS?.....	21	6 REPORTS FROM FINNISH SCHOOLS.....	59
Political dimensions.....	21	School reports & Finnish reality	59
An educational school.....	21	Resources.....	62
Other perspectives on motives for education.....	25	Classroom findings.....	63
Individualized learning in mixed ability groups.....	25	Relationships.....	64
3 HOW CHILDREN LEARN.....	29	Conclusive remarks.....	65
Different perspectives on learning.....	29	7 INDIVIDUALISED LEARNING IN MIXED ABILITY GROUPS IN ENGLAND.....	67
Social constructivism as an example in teaching natural science.....	31	1944 to 1965.....	67
Our theoretical framework of learning.....	32	The change to comprehensive education.....	67
4 THE WAY OF UNDERSTANDING TEACHING AND LEARNING.....	35	Streaming or mixed ability classes?.....	68
Tools.....	35	The current position.....	69
Quality issues in the project.....	35
Standardised criteria for observation and interviews.....	36
Case studies	36

8 REPORTS FROM THE ENGLISH SCHOOLS	71	12 REPORTS FROM SWEDISH SCHOOLS	125
The Reports.....	71	Description of the Swedish school As and Bs	125
Themes from the observations of English Schools.....	80	Description of the Swedish schools Cs and Ds	129
Some English perspectives on the reports from the visits	85	The ethos of the schools	130
		Minute from the final discussion in Sweden	134
		Findings in the reports from Sweden	135
		A Swedish perspective to the reports from Sweden.....	135
9 INDIVIDUALISED LEARNING IN MIXED ABILITY GROUPS IN NORWAY	89	13 INDIVIDUALISED LEARNING IN MIXED ABILITY GROUPS IN GERMANY	137
The Norwegian school system and policy.....	89	Cultural and political climate.....	137
History of integration and inclusion.....	89	A short survey of the historical background.....	137
A room for all, – an eye for everyone	91	Mixed ability groups with migrant and special needs children – a new challenge.....	139
Ideology and practice.....	92	German Schools after the “PISA-Shock”.....	139
Pupils or knowledge in the centre?.....	94	The status of teachers, teacher-training and in-service training.....	140
National tests – a tool for better individualised education?	95	Legal framework and party politics.....	141
Conclusions and future perspective on the relation between ideology and practice.....	96	Assessment and Learning.....	141
		External supervision.....	143
10 REPORTS FROM NORWEGIAN SCHOOLS	99	Learning in a German perspective.....	143
Findings from four Norwegian schools.....	99	14 REPORTS FROM GERMAN SCHOOLS	147
The schools Cn and Dn seen by another couple of researchers.....	106	Introductory remarks.....	147
So far the research reports	111	Findings of the Schools Ag and Bg.....	147
Items emphasized in the reports.....	113	Report of the second pair of visitors on schools Ag and Bg.....	150
		Examples of good practice observed in schools Ag and Bg.....	151
11 INDIVIDUALISED LEARNING IN MIXED ABILITY GROUPS IN SWEDEN	117	Constructive Comments about areas for development.....	152
The development of individualised learning in mixed ability groups.....	117	Findings of the schools Cg and Dg.....	153
Starting points	118	Factors influencing individualized learning in mixed-ability groups.....	154
The Swedish discussion.....	118	Report of the second pair of visitors to schools Cg and Dg.....	155
Individual documentation	119	National views.....	157
Some conclusions from Swedish schools working with individual plans and documentation	120	A German perspective to the visitors’ reports	159
An Individual Development Plan – An example and discussion from the municipality of Mark, a paradigm shift in Swedish education.....	120

15 FILMS.....	163	APPENDIX.....	203
Work in foreign fields.....	163	International Module.....	203
Planning the video recordings / Situation on location....	164	In this course several aims were set up:.....	203
Natural observation and documentation on film.....	164	Impressions of the course.....	204
The arrangement of picture and soundtrack recording.....	165	How can teachers use our findings?	204
Redundancy of the recorded material.....	165	Conclusion.....	209
Intention and receptivity.....	166	SAMMANFATTNING.....	211
Separation following Year-6 or Year-7: Spatial (rooms) and organizational.....	167	SAMMENDRAG.....	217
School and parents.....	167	TIIVISTELMÄ.....	223
The individual films	168	ZUSAMMENFASSUNG.....	229
16 CONCLUSIONS.....	179	INTRODUCTION OF THOSE WHO HAVE WRITTEN ARTICLES FOR THE BOOK.....	233
Factors which influence individualised learning in mixed ability groups positively	179
Categories of practice.....	179
Didactic principles, organization and methods i n class.....	181
Principles of social focus in school and in class – collective level.....	183
Principles of development focus in class – individual level.....	185
Physical and material framework.....	187
Staff competence and suppositions.....	188
Comments on tendencies.....	189
Analysis of factors which influence individualised learning in mixed ability groups positively.	190
Summary.....	193
17 FUTURE PERSPECTIVES.....	197
Investigating through case-studies	197
Individualized education and heterogeneity in the future?.....	198		